The Corpus Conundrum

A Third Case from the Notebooks of Pliny the Younger

by Albert A. Bell, Jr

ISBN: 9781932158960 - trade paperback- $16.95

Second in the series was chosen as One of five Best Mysteries of 2008 from Library Journal

While out hunting, Pliny finds a man's body. He appears lifeless, but Pliny cannot find a cause of death. He locks the body in a stable, but in the morning the body is gone. Strangers appear at Pliny's door, claiming to be the man's children. One sings siren songs and claims his "father" is immortal. Another may be an empusa, a shape-shifting, blood-drinking monster. Bodies pile up: a fifteen year old murder, a faceless man floating in the bay, and the "lifeless immortal," this time with his throat cut. Was he killed for his blood? Pliny and Tacitus must discover how the murders are connected to each other and to Pliny's nemesis Marcus Aquilius Regulus.

INSPIRED choice of protagonists ... writing is clear and crisp ... use of the historical sources is ingenious.
—Steven Saylor, author of the series, Roma Sub Rosa and Empire.

Naked and Hungry by Ashley Memory

ISBN: 9781932158939
trade paperback-$15.95

Can a burnt-out bank officer on the run for his life save a small town from environmental disaster? Welcome to Yatesville, where danger is epidemic and love is toxic

Shades of Richard Russo... Memory's characters are quirky, funny...a little dangerous. ...—Justin Catanoso, author of My Cousin the Saint

Fun, light read that also drives home very real issues.
—Lynne Dardanell, North Carolina land trust community

The Ocean Forest Murder in Myrtle Beach by Troy D. Nooe

ISBN: 9781932158915
trade paperback - $14.95

Frankie McKeller hates the beach. But when the army buddy who saved his life on Omaha Beach sends a wedding invitation, Frankie has to appear.

As a low-rent private dick from Baltimore, Frankie isn't prepared for the luxury of the Myrtle Beach resort. When a wedding guest is discovered with a bullet to his brain, his six-weeks correspondence course in detective work proves lacking as well.

The Chamomile by Susan F. Craft

ISBN: 9781932158946-trade paperback-$15.95

Lilyan joins Patriot spies in British-occupied Charlestown, SC, to rescue her brother from a notorious prison ship. She'll lie, steal, kill or be killed she promises Nicholas Xanthakos, a scout with Francis Marion's partisans, who leads the mission. In Nicholas' arms she discovers enduring love...a home. But that home is a long time coming. Her journey requires she save the life of one British officer but kill another to protect her Cherokee friend Elizabeth. In escaping bounty hunters, she treks miles of wilderness and very nearly loses everything before finally reuniting with her true love.

Susan Craft comes to fiction with 30 years experience writing for the SC Dept. of Mental Health and for public television.
